1. Basin No. 1, also known as the President's Basin, in Gdynia Harbor, is used for the berthing of coastal vessels. On the southern quay are located:

- a. The deep-sea fishery school built since the war.
- b. A partially completed swimming pool.
- c. A WOP (Military Border Guard) sentry post.

On the southeast corner of the basin there is moored the S.S. BENIOWSKI, a former coastal vessel now used as a hostel and training base for marine cadets.

2. Hulls of the 4,000-ton LEWANT type ships are built at the Paris Commune Shipyard. Launchings include the NOWA HUTA and KOPERNIK. The engines for these vessels are imported from abroad. The vessels are towed to Gdansk for fitting out.
3. Fishing vessels normally refuel at Basin No. 2. Larger vessels may load fuel oil at either:
 - a. The fuelling point on the north side of the Port Canal, where they lie at landing stages some 20 meters from the bank and where they are supplied by direct pipe lines.
 - b. In Basin No. 4, where at a distance of 150 meters from the grain elevator there are fuel tanks on the jetty. These tanks are under guard.
4. A naval base is located at Oksywie, in the northern part of the port. No details are known of the naval vessels using this base, except that they go to Hel for summer maneuvers (May to August) each year.
